Leadership training of youth changemakers

"The youth is the future of the nation. Invest in them and you invest in the future", Jawaharlal Nehru!

After 2 years of engagement on the ground, we realized the need for youth leaders who can take action in their community and stand out loud for injustices spread towards society and the environment.

To address this need wild started Changemaker fellowship program in collaboration with Anantmool organization.

In this fellowship program, we are focusing on equipping our fellows (local youth) with leadership essential skills, community engagement, sensitization to environmental issues, and sensitization to gender stereotypes using modern tools such as Digital media.

After a baseline survey from 10 villages, we shortlisted 14 youths, as changemaker fellows. We conducted orientation sessions with them, which helped as an ice-breaker and understand the organization's vision, mission and policies. They participated in making a code of conduct for their team.

session The second was conducted via Mridul and Simran on peacebuilding. The session helps the fellows to do self-reflection, understand their community, active listening, conflict resolution and the way of communication. The session continues for 4 days. It provides a new aspect of thinking to fellows.

A proud moment for Wild

Sangam, submitted her project of promoting Agroforestry in her village,, at Ambition Accelerator program run by Ashoka university. She is the first girl of her village, who get chance to present her project in big platform and with several leaders from India and outside India. There she met with other youth participants, having different project to serve their community.

This is the proud moment for their family, friends and village. She alone took flight and reach Banglore. Being a girl first time she travel alone. She inspires lots of people of her age group to come out of their fear, break their own cages of fear and laziness and start exploring and learning.

In Collaboration with Goonj Distributed 1700 Fruit trees

We surveyed of potential farmers who can plant and take care of fruit saplings. With the plant supported by Goonj, we distributed 1700 saplings of Mango and Guava.

After distribution, we continue monitoring how they are taking care of these plants. Some plants died but many are still growing.

AS PART OF CHANGELOOM FELLOWS, WE HAD A 10-DAY RESIDENTIAL TRAINING IN JAIPUR, RAJASTHAN.

Here we learnt more about nursery management, rewilding, birdwatching, butterfly watching, planning for the organization, and deep awareness about self. We met with Laxhman Singh and visited his project area, where he did tremendous work on water conservation and rewilding of barren land. Also, we saw, how he focused on the 4 aspects to bring these changes which are the cultural needs, the psychological, environmental and economic needs of the community.

Analog forestry, Indigenous plant nursery, Natural farming and tour at farm

We are making different models of Ananlog forestry on our farm. Along with we are conserving endangered plants' seeds and preparing saplings. At our farm, we are completely practicing natural farming. We are organizing learning tours of children, youth and other Ngo's at our farm, to make them aware about watershed management, natural farming and biodiversity conservation and possibilities of livelihood generation.

Organizing Bihar Development Collective meet us at Simultala

Wild together with Anantmool got a chance to host the BDC program at Simultala. Here we got a chance to present our work to different Ngo's of Bihar, we gave them exposure to our farm, and working area, and of course, we gave them the taste of our indigenous products. During the 2-day meeting, we gave them a taste of different millet products. It helps them to be more aware of millet and be part of promoting it. Apart from these, the BDC meet helps as a level booster for our fellows to gain more confidence and learn new things.
